

Anyone who drove down A1A in Lauderdale-by-the-Sea when Mack's Grove was still there got a chance to see Talin Lymna-Johnson's colorful, 40 ft. tall, tropical mural. It was painted on the side of the fresh fruit and gift store where all Florida snowbirds stopped in the winter to ship a crate of fresh oranges to their friends and neighbors in the cold climates of New York and Boston.

Read More...